

The 2012 Housing Inventory is a compilation of emergency, transitional, and permanent housing, along with short-term acute residential, residential recovery and residential treatment housing. It is organized by type of housing, region, and target population. For Health and Human Services Agency Regions and zipcodes, please visit and search “HHSA Regions” at: <http://www.sdcounty.ca.gov/hhsa>.

The Housing Inventory is a list of housing that is made available to persons with mental illness. Some of the housing is dedicated to persons with mental illness but much of the housing is available, but not dedicated, to individuals with mental illness.

Please note that this list is not meant to be comprehensive but is meant to provide mental health service providers with a list of some housing options that may be available to their clients.

Short-term acute residential, residential treatment, and residential recovery are some housing options available to persons with mental illness. Short-term acute residential is typically limited to a 14-day stay while residential treatment and residential recovery are typically a 12–18 month transitional stay. All programs provide mental health services for individuals who require 24-hour residential services.
